Jammu and Kashmir – A Separate Union Territory

Introduction:

On 5th August 2019, the Indian government passed Jammu & Kashmir Reorganisation bill (2019), which divided Jammu & Kashmir state into 2 union territories – Jammu & Kashmir (union territory with state legislature), Ladakh (union territory without state legislature). The abolition of Article 370 and reorganization of the State will now open doors for development of all the three regions Jammu, Kashmir and Ladakh.

Benefits of Bifurcation:

It can result in Good governance, efficient administration and tackle terrorism. When Jammu & Kashmir was one state, Ladakh felt alienated. Its ecological and cultural uniqueness was not given enough importance and was often neglected because the culture of Ladakh. Thereby people of Ladakh are demanding the bifurcation from a long time. Ladakh's local leaders feel that their region was politically neglected by the administration at J&K. So, bifurcating is a good decision. Moreover, tourism and film shootings faced obstacles due to the militancy in J&K. Now as Ladakh is a separate UT, it can boost its economy.

Negative Impact:

The reorganization of state of Kashmir into two union territories of Jammu & Kashmir and Ladakh is although welcomed by Ladakh as it did not get fruits of development during past 70 years, Kashmir has lost its full state hood. Since J&K has become a Union territory, the central government must now ensure that funds are deployed properly and don't get into the pockets of a few families and their cronies.

Conclusion:

The Bifurcation of Jammu and Kashmir has so many Positive impact on growth and stability, curb terrorism, fast pace of development , educational developments etc. So it is welcomed by most of the people across the country.
